LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—A source authorized to speak for the former Barbara Hutton said Thursday that she had obtained a court order for possible restraining steps against her titled husband, 42-year-old Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, to safeguard herself and child.

The Danish nobleman was in Paris. There were conflicting reports whether he would come to London Thursday, possibly to shed some light on the mysterious kidnaping and estrangement report affecting his family.

New Retrenchment Program Launched by Jap Government

Order Affects Distribution and Consumption Inside of Japan

WAR PLANS MAPPED

Big Campaign to Begin Against 26 Chinese Divisions

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Reflecting the stringency of Japan's economic position, the government announced Thursday a drastic new retrenchment program which is expected to begin functioning July 15.

The order affects production, distribution and consumption inside of Japan and gives priority to materials, supply arms, ammunition and export materials, the government said.

New War Plans
PEIPING, China.—(AP)—Japanese army officials predicted Thursday a large-scale campaign would be renewed in the Shensi province to clear out an estimated 26 Chinese divisions massing there for a counter-offensive.

Rumors of Peace

SHANGHAI, China.—(AP)—New peace moves to halt the Chinese-Japanese warfare were reported under way Thursday. The reports came as Japanese warplanes struck three times at the South China port of Swatow, threatening large-scale invasion of South China, and new Japanese-American friction cropped up at Nanking and Shanghai.

Emissaries of the Japanese-sponsored North China provisional government were said to be holding preliminary negotiations with representatives of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

The German Transoceanic News Agency quoted Wang Chung-Hui, Chinese foreign minister, as "emphasizing the usefulness of mediation by a third party, since China and Japan desire to terminate hostilities but neither is willing to take the initiative for reasons of prestige." Wang was quoted as saying Japan must make the first overtures.

The North China government last Saturday issued a plea for peace, apparently with approval of the Japanese army minister at Peiping.

In Shanghai, a Japanese embassy spokesman said that Japan would "discuss peace with any Chinese government except that of the Kuomintang (Chiang's regime)." In what was regarded as an addition to "feelers" put out by both sides, the spokesman said that "peace will be settled when Chiang disappears from the scene." He added, however, that "there is no room for third-party mediation."

While Japanese massed planes and ships off Swatow, the United States government at Asheville stood by to protect Americans there. Sixty-nine American men, women and children were reported in the Swatow consular district. The British destroyer Thracian was on its way from Hongkong to guard British interests.

Phipps Files His Bill on Education

Seeks to Make State Board of Education an Elective One

LITTLE ROCK.—W. E. Phipps, former state education commissioner, filed with Secretary of State C. G. Hall Wednesday petitions to initiate at the November general election a constitutional amendment which Mr. Phipps said would "take the State Department of Education and textbooks out of politics." The petitions contained 23,309 signatures.

"I wish to thank those who helped circulate the petitions," Mr. Phipps said. "I mailed petitions to the secretaries of 300 rural and village school districts with the request that they be circulated if favored by the directors. I received most of the signatures in this manner. School superintendents, classroom teachers and laymen also assisted. The reception received by the persons circulating the petitions was most enthusiastic."

He said all counties sent in petitions except Baxter, Calhoun, Carroll, Cleburne, Cleveland, Drew, Mississippi and Phillips.

The proposed amendment would provide for election of members of the State Board of Education by congressional districts. They would become constitutional officers serving without pay. The state education commissioner could be removed only by a majority vote of the board and only for cause.

The State Textbook Commission would be abolished and the state board would select textbooks. A restriction, however, would be that books must be selected from lists approved by

Jew-Baiting Hits German Business

Aryan Business Men Irate Over Nazi Roughhouse Methods

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Evidence accumulated Wednesday night that the violent anti-Semitic manifestations of the past week were proving a boom-rang. Many Aryan shopkeepers and Aryans employed in Jewish stores say they are economic victims of the Jew-baiters, as much as the Jews themselves.

Movie houses in districts where raids have been the order of the day complain of half-empty houses. Not only are Jews staying away, but many Aryans who dislike having the show interrupted and being subjected to inquiry. One picture house visited by this writer had only 18 patrons, instead of the customary 400.

An Aryan barber complained that his daily earnings for haircuts and shaves were cut exactly one-half of what they were before the drive started. An Aryan pastry shop owner said he was considering going out of business because he now was operating at a loss.

In Jewish-owned department stores, an overwhelming majority of employees was Aryan or had become such since 1933. These people walk about with long faces, as they see either bankruptcy ahead for their firms or already hold notices in their hands.

Dissatisfaction with the new anti-Semitic drive extends far into the ranks of the Nazi party members, as many conversations with individual Nazis show. The assertion night by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels that the party and state would now take solution of the problem into its hands is accepted by many as an implied admission that things cannot go on as they have recently.

Goebbels told cheering thousands that there would be new laws "to break Jewish influence soon" and to drive Jews from Germany with "strictly legal" measures.

Pendergast Seeking Missouri Okay Since Vote Fraud Trials

First of Big City Bosses to "Feel Out" State Power

Unshaken in Own Kansas City District of Fraud Convictions

HITS AT GOVERNOR

Pendergast "Made" Stark, Now Boss Seeks to "Break" Him

By JOHN SIEA
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Boss Tom Pendergast, head of one of the nation's most potent political machines, soon will find out whether his power outside of Kansas City has been lessened as a result of the vote fraud convictions in his home bailiwick.

Big Tom's opponents say the boss is slipping out in Missouri, and political figures all over the nation are watching the campaign for the August 2 primaries in the hope of getting a slant on the future of political bossism in the United States. What happens to Pendergast may very well happen to other bosses—be it repudiation or endorsement.

Pendergast is making an issue of the contest for a state supreme court judgeship by supporting Circuit Judge James V. Billings of Kennett against Judge James M. Douglass of St. Louis, who was named to the court last year by Gov. Lloyd Stark.

There are two big reasons Pendergast wants to win this fight:

1. He wants to demonstrate to one and all that Missouri democracy is behind him, that the vote fraud revelations cost him no more prestige outside than in Kansas City, where he pulled through with a smashing victory in the municipal elections this spring.

2. Even more important to Pendergast is his desire to give Governor Stark a "spanking."

Hasn't Shown Gratitude
Stark rode into office in 1936 on a wave of votes washed up by the Pendergast machine. Then last year he began firing Pendergast men. This of course made his sponsor very unhappy and Pendergast now admits that he is out to get Stark politically.

The word around the capital here is that Pendergast would have backed almost any competent jurist from heavily Democratic southeast Missouri. Apparently the boss has nothing against Douglass except that he is a Stark man.

Right now Billings seems to be out

New High School at Prescott Planned

$100,000 Building Proposed; Would Consolidate Districts

PRESCOTT, Ark.—S. H. Cadenhead, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, announced that the Prescott School Board has accepted the Chamber's proposed plan for a new $100,000 High School building at a special meeting of the board held in the Chamber of Commerce offices with the C. of C. Special Committee, composed of Dr. A. S. Buchanan, Sam O. Logan, N. Daniel, W. F. Denman and Mr. Cadenhead.

The proposed plan of the C. of C. calls for a modern high school building to be built at an approximate cost of $100,000, to be financed by a loan and grant from the PWA and the RFC. Mr. Cadenhead stated that previous correspondence with these government agencies assures him that the loan can be secured. The entire plan is contingent upon the consolidation of several school districts adjoining the Prescott district, none of which are now operating a senior high school.

By consolidating these districts with the Prescott district it would raise the bonding power and revenue of the new district enough to carry the proposed loan for the new building which would be spread over a period of 30 years.

The special committee of the C. of C. has been studying the possible plans for the new building for the past few weeks and the following is a statement of the committee regarding the plan:

"The plan will impose no additional taxes on the taxpayers and would furnish an adequate budget for the operation of a school that would raise the standard of our present rating and pay the additional debt service for the new building and offer educational facilities and opportunities to the high school students of the districts to be consolidated that, otherwise, they can never have."

Applications for the loan and grant are being prepared so rapidly as possible and will be filed with the government agencies immediately. Mr. Cadenhead said. The plan for the new building will be presented to the proposed districts to be consolidated at an early date.

Bradley Bandits Named—1 Suspect Is Held at Dallas

Jack Winn, 22, Admits Participation in Bradley Holdup

NAMES COMPANIONS

Says Hamilton and Walters Were Other Two Actual Robbers

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Dallas County Sheriff Smoot Schmid announced Thursday afternoon the capture of a man listed as Jack Winn, 22, of Ferris, Texas, who the sheriff said admitted that he was a companion of Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters part of the time since the two fugitives escaped from the Montague county jail.

Sheriff Schmid said the man, arrested at his home at Ferris June 13 and secretly held here since, had made a written statement in which he admitted participation in the June 7 robbery of the Bank of Bradley at Bradley, Ark.

The sheriff said Winn admitted that Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters were his two companions in the Bradley holdup.

Bank Robbed of $885.25
The Bank of Bradley was robbed of $885.25 in cash the morning of June 7 by three bandits shortly after the bank opened for business that day.

Jack Meek, bank cashier, said two of the bandits, armed with pistols, entered the bank while a third remained, under a steering wheel of an automobile.

The bandits fled toward Louisiana and escaped. Meek later identified photographs of Hamilton as one of the bandits who entered the bank.

Arkansas and Louisiana officers suspected Charles Chapman was the third man in the robbery, but Winn's admission in Dallas Thursday apparently clears up that point.

What Is Happening, and What Matters

AMONG the people who get gray hairs during the depression is the newspaper editor.

Not only does the editor have all the ordinary depression worries about payrolls, balance sheets and so on; he also has the responsibility of laying daily before his readers a mental bill of fare calculated to tempt their appetites.

Consider what the editor has had to choose from lately.

HE HAS had an unusually bloody and cruel war in China, with day-to-day lists of cities bombed, non-combatants blown to bits, towns sacked, armies routed and spies executed. He has had an equally distressing war in Spain, with much the same sort of fodder coming out of that hopper. He has had rumors of war from all over Europe, with troops mobilizing on peaceful borders, cabinets tottering, Russians being executed, armaments being piled up and a general miasma of fear and suspicion spreading across every land.

At home he has had a vindictive and occasionally unprincipled political row to report. He has had a stupendous unemployment problem to tell about, an equally stupendous problem in government finance to expound, a series of strikes to report, and a while list of minor unpleasantnesses like kidnappings, holdups, airplane disasters and so on to tell about.

ALL OF which brings us to the stunt a certain metropolitan editor in the middle west tried the other day.

He had the usual grist of catastrophes to choose from when he made up his front page: a Spanish bombing, a Sino-Japanese battle, a new blood-and-thunder speech by Hitler, another frog-eye act by Mussolini, a factory strike down east, and the like. And he finally turned his back on all of these things and built his front page around the fact that the women who had headed the local library, and had done a grand peaceful, constructive job of it for something like a quarter of a century, was resigning her position.

Well, maybe the editor was right. Maybe his readers unconsciously blessed him when their morning paper told them that in spite of all the hell that has broken loose the unspectacular business of making a more civilized world was still going on. Maybe a story doesn't have to have a corpse in it to be news, after all.

If you were an editor, how would you look at it?

Maps Are Momentary

BOUNDARIES are funny things.

A child's conception of a boundary is a line across the landscape separating the yellow territory from the pink. A farmer's conception of a boundary—a Main farmer who lives across the line from the village of Escourt in Quebec—is a horsefly inside his shirt.

The Canadian Parliament has been asked to negotiate for the annexation of five square miles of American territory on the edge of that line. One hundred persons of French Canadian descent are the inhabitants of the area. The farmers, cut off from the rest of Maine by some 50 to 75 miles of dense forest, have to sell their products in Canada and purchase their supplies there. Duties hit them in the neck coming and going.

These people know better what a political boundary is than the millions who live removed from such frontiers. A boundary is the shadow of the edge of a sphere of power, and no more real than a shadow.

Men are not separated by shadows. The people who live in the jumbled territories of Europe know what men are separated by. Greed, pride, and lack of imagination. The real boundaries are the boundaries in the mind.

At some remote time in the future the shadows may go, when the boundaries in the mind are gone.

More Than One Hundred Thousand Die Annually in Accidents

The most serious hazards of the summer season are not, as might be expected, the effects of the heat, the exhaustion that comes from fatigue, or the diseases that prevail especially in summer. Under modern conditions of living most of these factors are under excellent control.

The real hazards to life and health nowadays are accidents.

We kill regularly, by accidents of all types, more than 100,000 people per year. The rate for Canada is 40 per cent below that for the United States. Although England and Wales are agitating themselves greatly over deaths from accidents, our death rate is twice that of England or Wales.

The reason is, of course, that we have in this country more motor cars, more tall buildings and more other evidences of new ways of living than are available in most foreign countries.

In addition, however, we are probably as careless and reckless a people as is to be found anywhere in the world.

Not only do we have great numbers of motor cars which slaughter around 40,000 people per year and injured at least a million more, but we also have more accidents from vehicles of other types.

There are still a considerable number of people who are injured by railroads, by street cars, and the list includes deaths by falling from wagons, by being run over by horses and wagons, as well as deaths from motorcycles, bicycles, and even from sleds. (The list named are not a prominent cause of death in the summer.)

Incidentally, drowning continues to take up a great toll of death, particularly of children, and particularly during the summer months. More than one-half of the people who are drowned in the United States meet their deaths during the months of June, July and August. Three-fourths of these deaths occur in the five months from May to September, the remaining fourth occurring in the next seven months. Men die from drowning much more frequently than do women.

With the great amount of teaching that has been done in recent years relative to resuscitation from drowning, the deaths from drowning seem to be steadily decreasing.

About 7000 deaths occur from this cause each year. If people would only realize that there is danger from water sports, if life-saving methods could be taught more widely, and if more people learned how to give artificial respiration when needed in an emergency, the number of deaths from drowning could be still further diminished.

Time Teaches Children to Know "Ours" and "Theirs"

(No. 124)

In teaching responsibility, one of the first lessons in the primer is property rights.

Even a baby can be made to understand "No, No," when he touches the lamp. He need not understand that the lamp cost ten dollars or that it isn't his, but he finally gets it into his head after a year or two that there are things permitted and things forbidden.

Gradually he will absorb reasons for letting certain objects alone. By frequent telling he learns that the doll is "Sister's," the book "Daddy's" and the umbrella "Mother's."

He should begin to live happily in this world of boundaries by the time he is four. He will make some mistakes and also many experiments, but in the main he should know that Mr.

Smith's grass is not for him to ride his tricycle over and that Mrs. Smith's kitten is not to be lugged home.

From this time on, his sense of property should be fixed more firmly each year. He won't have to be told all of it, for now his natural inhibitions are working for him, or should be. "Hands off," should be a part of him.

When we were little we actually thought it was wrong to take a pin. To us children at home, it was put as "wicked to steal a pin. That was good discipline, as so many old-fashioned ideas were.

Today we are afraid of telling children that anything is wicked. I agree with that, too. It may, as I have a tendency to create "over-guilt" in perfectly innocent children. However, I still think it had its value. It set respect for ownership. Anything that wasn't ours, just wasn't ours.

Hairsplitting? Absolutely not. There can be no hair-splitting when it comes to property rights. Everything in the world belongs outright, or morally, to someone.

We lived in one city where the wind blew all the rubbish to our gutters and lawns on the west side of the street. Each morning the trash was cleaned up. Most of it consisted of torn school papers and tinsel wrappers.

Not all of it was thrown by children, for grown-ups are savage offenders, too, but I used to wonder just what idea of ethics some children had. In difference? Yes. And indifference is bad. The street belonged to all the people who lived in it.

Everything should mean something to a child. It is not only his responsibility to leave things alone, but to help conserve them. A boy picks a park rose, smells it, throws it away. He shoots a bird, shows it to his chums and tosses it into the brush. He hits a dog with his bike and scoots off. He began possibly by small acts of vandalism that passed unnoticed.

Each child, boy or girl, young or adolescent, should know not only to let things alone but to stand behind his own acts of carelessness or more deliberate destruction, and make what reparation he can. This is responsibility.

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

So far as Joseph could see there was just one thing wrong with the setup. He had a slight headache. Nothing much, to be sure. Just an annoying little throbbing in back of his temples. He wished it would go away. It seemed to be affecting his eyes. The three beautiful blonds behind the ice-cream counter looked a trifle vague and out of focus. He was getting somewhat dim and the apartment he held wobbled in shadowy fashion just out of reach of Joseph's clutching fingers.

For a moment he toyed with the idea of sending Smithers below to get him a couple of aspirins and a pinch of soda bicarb. And then, very suddenly, Joseph Herendeen Sandham woke up.

There wasn't any yacht. There wasn't any Smithers. There wasn't any streamlined blonds. There was, however, a shaft of sunlight that hit him directly in the face; a feeling as if the Ford factory working to capacity just in back of his forehead; and a red-headed girl with aquamarine eyes.

The red-headed girl spoke. "Well, Rip Van Winkle," she said, "I'm afraid you'll find things a bit changed."

JOSEPH made a hasty survey of his surroundings. In a vague way he perceived that he was in a bed in a large well-furnished room. The red-headed girl sat on the foot of the bed. He did not recognize the bed, the room or the girl. Wherefore he poised a hackneyed, but necessary, question on his lips and let her go.

"Where am I?" he said. "In bed," said the red-headed girl.

"Who's bed?" "My Uncle Tyler's bed," Joseph felt carefully beneath the covers.

"Your Uncle Tyler in here too?" he inquired.

"Not this morning," said the girl. "Oh! Where is your Uncle Tyler?"

"In Europe. As I was saying, Rip, you've got a lot of new things ahead of you. There's the Tri-Borough Bridge, for instance. There's—start again. Something smashed, I guess."

"Hey, just a minute. Who put me in this bed?" "Simmons, I helped."

MENTION of his car brought another fact about himself back to Joe. For two years he had been employed by the long-established and respectable firm of Chandler & Sandham, Chocolates, Caramels, Bonbons and Confections, learning the business from the ground up. At the moment he was serving in the capacity of salesman for the New England territory. Hence the car, a Ford built along the general lines of a fair-sized delivery truck.

"I don't understand," he said now, "why you brought me here? Why didn't you just toss me into a hospital?"

Kelly looked at him, speculated for a moment on the fact that he had curly dark hair and eyes a nice shade of gray, then said: "Of course, hospitals are sprinkled all over the place, aren't they? Like hot dog stands and filling stations? It was easier to bring you here, that's all. You see, the crack-up happened only a couple of miles away and I knew Uncle Tyler was in Europe. Besides, I wanted to avoid any—er—publicity."

"That's the old Carbo fight," said Joe. "I shun publicity myself. Live quietly and expensively, is my motto. But where were you going in such a rush?"

Kelly sighed. "Questions. Nothing but questions. What is this, the third degree?"

"Well, you're the girl that knows all the answers. And I've been out with the birdies for the Lord knows how long. Come on, lady. Was there a fire in Boston?"

"If you've got to know, I was on my way to Boston. Cambridge, rather."

"Not a rendezvous with some gent from Fair Harvard?" "She nodded. "Sort of."

"What do you mean, sort of?" "Well," said Kelly, "I was on my way to meet Gilbert."

"Gilbert, eh? Who's Gilbert, for Pete's sake?"

"Gilbert Mallow. My fiancé. You know, the man I'm going to marry."

Our Days

The days they come, the days they go,
Beads upon life's chain;
With opalescent hues they glow,
Like drops of pearly rain.
That vivid rainbow colors show,
This, when life and hope are young,
And love her sweetest songs hath sung.

The days they come, the days they go,
None's upon life's scale,
And minor chords of deepest woe
Tell of hopes that fail,
And greatest loss that earth can know.
God grant we keep the rainbow hue,
Still hope and youth's glad song renew.—Selected.

The above is one of the favorite poems of the writer of this column, and it is often brought to mind when reading Mrs. Roosevelt's "My Day" and while her opportunities, her activities, are even her riches exceed ours, by far, still she hasn't a "corner," as it were, on "Bonds upon life's chain" and though they sometimes hold chords of deepest woe, and tell of hopes that fail, we should waste no moments in vain regrets, but strive to keep the vivid rainbow hues....

Miss Nancy Fae Williams, Mary Wilson, Mary Cornelia Holloway, Margery Dildy and Martha White of this city and Eleanor Seamore of Fulton left Tuesday morning for a month's stay at Camp Joyelle, near Monte Ne.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams were

Wednesday visitors in Little Rock.

In celebration of his third birthday anniversary, on Wednesday afternoon, June 22, Master Barry Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart of Vicksburg Miss., entertained a group of his young friends at the home of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stewart, North Hervey street. The young friends came bearing gifts, which kept the young host quite busy for a time, saying "thanks" and demonstrating and displaying for the entertainment of those present. Pictures were made of the group and the birthday cake, after which they filled into his dining room for blowing out the candles and cutting the cake, which was served with ice cream, followed by the distribution of vari-loud balloons at favors. Great-grandmother, Mrs. F. W. Hall was an honored guest, Miss Kwen Evans assisted in directing the playing and serving.

Mrs. A. L. Black, Mrs. Frank R. Johnson and little son, Jerry, were Thursday visitors in Texarkana.

The June meeting for Circle No. 4 W. M. U. First Baptist church, Mrs. Bynum Easterling chairman was held at the home of Mrs. Steve Gibson, South Grady street. Mrs. S. D. Cook gave the Mission Study and following a short business period, the hostess served an ice course with cookies to ten members and one visitor, Mrs. W. R. Hamilton.

Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Welch are expected home Thursday afternoon from San Francisco, Calif., where they attended the annual convention of the American Medical association.

Ask State Help for Movie Stars

Once a highly-paid actress and wife of Rudolph Valentino, Jean Acker Valentino, above, leads a group of impoverished former film luminaries who have petitioned Governor Merriam of California to draft a new state "career insurance" law setting aside 10 per cent of salary and protecting stars against penniless lives when careers are ended. Mrs. Valentino is pictured during work as an extra in new movie, "The Young in Heart."

To Inspect Canadian Cities

So far there have been no misfortune and no sickness on the tour. Toronto and Montreal will catch our fancy during the next few days. Little, big, old and young are finding a thrill in going under the river which has 60 feet of water over the train when passing through the tunnel into Canada. What the customs officers will find in bags and baggage is a question which will be settled only by them.

Action of Council Arouses Citizens

Court Battle Looms Over Control of Light Plant at Benton

BENTON, Ark.—Much indignation was expressed Thursday by residents of Benton at the attempt of four aldermen, ousted from office last week by the decision of Judge H. B. Means in ruling on suits contesting the April election, to disrupt the municipally owned light district. One of the four aldermen is under indictment on a felony charge in connection with alleged false certification of the returns of that election.

Control of the light plant was the big issue in the city election. By introduction of an ordinance at this week's council meeting to wrest control of the district, the issue has been brought in the open.

It became apparent Thursday that a legal wrangle will ensue if the ordinance is passed at the July 5 meeting of the council. The ordinance is based on Section 7366 of Foote's Digest which says:

"In case of the construction of electric light works by any improvement district, the city council after such works are completed shall have full power and authority to operate same instead of the improvement district."

The Benton Electric Light and Power District was created by Special Act 274 of 1921, which says in part:

"Said district shall not cease to exist when the works have been purchased, but shall continue to exist perpetually, and the electric light and power plant by it purchased shall be operated for the benefit of the inhabitants of said city by the commissioners hereinafter provided for, and their successors in office."

It was this act that Representative Coffelt attempted to abolish in the 1935 session of the legislature.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Introducing New Faces To U. S. Stamps

HARDLY had the U. S. pictorial stamp issue of 1869 dried on the presses when a wave of ridicule swept the country. Already the designs for this issue had been changed once to satisfy political whims, and when the series finally was released the press almost universally attacked it. The result was a short-lived set, replaced by an entirely new issue in 1870.

This new issue originally consisted of 10 stamps, ranging in value from 1 cent to 90 cents. It continued in use with minor changes and additions until 1892 and thereafter some stamps were discontinued, others added, and still others changed in color and design.

The issue introduced several new faces to American philately, including Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Gen. Winfield Scott, Alexander Hamilton, Commodore Perry, Gen. Zachary Taylor, President Garfield, Stanton. Reproduced here, slightly more than one and one-half times actual size, is the 1-cent blue Franklin stamp, first of the issue, after a bust by Houdon.

No Landlord Trouble in City Park

Twice in a month their landlords wouldn't wait for the rent, so two fatherless Cleveland families moved to a pavilion in a municipal park and announced their intention of continuing light house-keeping there until relief funds are available to pay their rent. Mrs. Emma Krus is shown, top, cooking on an improvised stove as her children Robert, 5, and Richard, 7, look on. The lower photo shows Mrs. Jessie Ferguson, mother of the other evicted family, watching over her sons Herbert, 11, and Wilfred, 7, as they sleep on a park bench under the pavilion. Said Mrs. Krus: "It's wonderful for the children."

Proletarian Moscow to Have 4,000 Taxis By First of the Year

MOSCOW—(P)—Taxicabs are becoming noticeable on Moscow streets.

There were only 310 taxis in this capital of nearly 4,000,000 inhabitants at the beginning of this year. But the number had increased to 1,200 by May and the government plans to have 4,000 in operation by the end of the year. Only a year ago taxis were a comparative rarity in Moscow, with only a few stands where they could be found. Cruising taxis still are unknown. The only way to hire a cab is to go to a stand or call for one by telephone.

There are 65 taxi stands now, mostly in prominent squares, with 250 more planned. So inflexible is the service that the government found lines of idle cabs at some stands, while none was available at others. It has ordered this corrected through a central dispatcher's office.

Nippon Cafe Girl Rewarded, Fined For Honest Deed

TOKYO—(P)—Being a good girl after being a bad girl turned out to be poor business for Sumiko Terada, beautiful Tokyo cafe hostess.

Not long ago, a patron came to the bar where Miss Terada entertains. He flourished a healthy roll, bought drinks for the house, presented her with a huge bouquet of flowers. Then he suggested she accompany him to a restaurant after the bar closed at midnight.

She did. There, she learned he had stolen the money. While he slept, she notified the police. They arrested the man, praised her for her civic virtue, gave her a reward, three yen.

Then, with typical Japanese justice, they fined her 10 yen for violating the ordinance that prohibits cafe girls from accompanying patrons after midnight.

Net loss—seven yen.

Advertising Urged by Bank Official

Depression Is Purely Psychological, Says Banker's Ass'n. Head

NEW YORK. (AP)—Aggressive advertising campaigns by business to start an upward-trade trend was advocated Wednesday in the new issue of Banking, official publication of the American Bankers Association, by William R. Kuhns, editor. He said: "Public education through aggressive advertising and selling is the best weapon that business has to combat the prevailing inertia. It is the only means lying completely within the control of business which can be used to counteract the side of the depression that is purely psychological." The problem of making large reservoirs of existing bank credit available for sound business, he said, "is being attacked from many angles." Discussions at Washington, he went on, "have indicated considerable headway among authorities as to methods by which the flow of credit from banks to industry can be stimulated." Listing favorable factors "which ought to inspire confidence," he included estimated record grain crops with corresponding European shortage; depleted condition of merchandise stocks; depletion of raw material stocks, and the seeming inevitability of "renewed buying in almost all lines."

There are approximately 3,000,000 lepers in the world.

Joe Louis Scores Knockout in First Round of Fight

Heavyweight Title Fight Lasts Only Two Minutes, Four Seconds

NAZIS DISAPPOINTED

Hitler Waits Up Until 3 a. m. to Hear Disheartening News

By ALAN GOULD

YANKEE STADIUM, New York.—(AP)—The brown bomber came back Wednesday night—all the way back with an explosion that electrified the fight world and smashed Germany's Max Schmeling into a helpless, sprawling figure of defeat in less than one round.

Dusky Joe Louis waited two years to avenge the one and only defeat of his professional career, but then took little more than two minutes to achieve it under the Yankee Stadium's floodlights with a devastating blast that produced the quickest ending in pugilistic history to a world heavyweight championship match.

The 24-year-old Alabama negro, knocked out in the same ring in 12 rounds by Schmeling in 1936, turned loose an attack of such suddenness and ferocity that the German never had a chance.

Beaten to the first punch by the bomber's snake-like left, Schmeling was knocked down three times and so badly battered that his handlers threw in the towel in token of defeat as the timekeeper tolled the count of "eight" on the last knockdown.

The finish came after two minutes, four seconds of the first round as a howling crowd of 80,000 onlookers, thrilled by the negro's spectacular rush to triumph, witnessed the most sensational heavyweight title finish since Jack Dempsey flattened Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds in September, 1925.

Schmeling, a picture of confidence beforehand and favored by many to become the first ex-champion in history to regain the heavyweight crown, never had a chance after the bell rang for the first round.

Louis, justifying his own prediction of a short finish, achieved it one round sooner than he expected, with a two-fisted onslaught that left the huge crowd as excited as Schmeling was dizzy after it was all over.

The champion took command on the first exchange, belted Schmeling unmercifully about the head, and quickly had the German in distress. Max was on the verge of going down within the first minute, but covered and hung grimly to the ropes, near his own corner, as he tried desperately to save himself.

Finally forced into the open, Schmeling went down on his side, with a rolling motion, after being clipped with a hard right to the head. He was already so groggy that he took no heed of either the count or warning yells from his own corner. He struggled to his feet, after only three seconds, only to meet another withering blast.

On the second knockout, Schmeling sprawled to all fours, after Louis fired both hands to his jaw. The German's eyes were glassy, his mouth open, but his courage somehow pulled him back to his feet, after a count of only one.

Referee Arthur Donovan, rushing between the two as he waved Louis aside, grabbed Schmeling's gloves to wipe them on his shirt, then stepped aside. Panther-like, measuring his man, Louis stepped in quickly to deliver the finishing punch. His right shot out, landed heavily on Schmeling's jaw, and the German went down for the last time.

Max rolled over on his side, instinctively trying to regain his feet, but there wasn't a chance he could do so. At the count of eight, Max Machon, Schmeling's trainer, tossed the towel into the ring and quickly followed it as he rushed to the aid of the beaten man.

It was thus a technical knockout victory for the champion but it hardly could have been more devastating or complete.

Schmeling did not land a single damaging punch and only once connected with the right hand that spelled defeat for Louis two years ago. He countered solidly with his right, soon after Louis had rushed him at the outset. Joe said afterward that he felt the blow but it didn't even cause him to blink, nor was it followed by anything resembling the attack that made the German a fist hero in 1936.

Schmeling insisted afterward he was partly paralyzed by a left with which Louis hit him, over the left kidney, after about a minute had elapsed but the paralyzing effect of Joe's punches to the German's jaw were far more obvious and convincing.

Undaunted, the German went so far,

In his dressing room, as to suggest he was, in effect the victim of a "bad break" and insisted he would like a third crack at the negro. But the "breaks" were the dynamite in Louis' fists Wednesday night and there was not the slightest question of surprise in the minds of all onlookers.

Nazis Disappointed
BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—All Germany clustered about its shortwave radio sets in the early Thursday morning hours was thunderstruck and almost unbelieving at the unexpected news that "Unser Max" Schmeling had failed in his heavyweight comeback try and failed by the knockout route.

Their high hopes of hearing Schmeling had fought his way back to the heavyweight championship were dashed so suddenly that gay radio parties and cafe gatherings were quickly dampened. Germans who had stayed up till 3 a. m. for the shortwave broadcast only to hear a 2:01-minute fight end with dramatic dispatch, went to bed with a saddened lot.

All over the Reich they had clustered in homes, restaurants, and cafes to hear the fight they hoped would bring the world's championship to Germany.

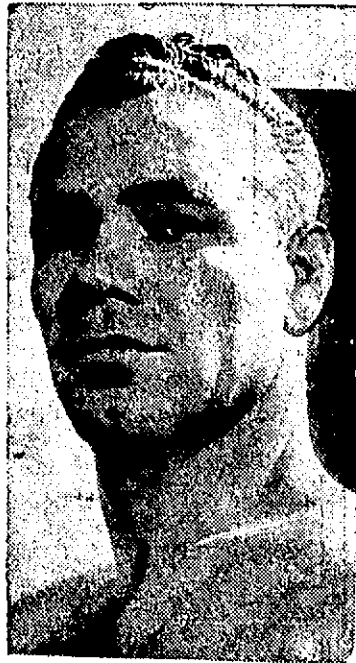

It was said Adolf Hitler at his Bavarian mountain retreat was among those who heard the disheartening news.

It was a pitcher's battle between Miller and Drake until the eighth inning when the Crackers scored three runs, two of them as a result of an overthrow by Holiday to first base. Miller gave up only four hits to the Pelicans and himself got two safeties in three times at bat, making one run.

Town Stocks Minnows to Liquidate Shrimps

CODY, Wyo.—(AP)—Buffalo Bill Cody's home town has resorted to the old law of the survival of the strongest to clean its drinking water of miniature fresh water shrimp.

Housewives complained because the shrimp frequently got through the water pipes and into glasses of drinking water.

So Daniel J. McQuaid, consulting engineer, summoned from Denver to solve the problem, imported minnows and placed them in the water reservoirs to eat the shrimp, their natural food.

Higher Wages—Lower Prices

A Standard Oil Policy in Arkansas...

THERE has been much talk lately about raising the wages of workers. At the same time industry has been called upon to reduce prices. This is no new policy to the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana.

Here in Arkansas we have followed such a program for a good many years. We have aimed not simply at better wages for our employees—but for better wages combined with prices that let all wage earners buy more freely.

As an example, in 1937 our hourly wage rate was far above the pre-depression level of 1929. During the same period we reduced the price of our gasoline by an average of 20.7%—and the product was vastly improved.

This business of helping to make both ends meet is a major function of our organization here and elsewhere. It goes hand in hand with our aim to make the Esso Dealer sign the mark of extra service and unexcelled products.
